A 68-year-old man admitted to our hospital with a history of drinking and smoking was diagnosed as having pulmonary tuberculosis by chest roentgenogram, sputum examination and bronchoalveolar lavage. Treatment with 2 months of daily 4-drug regimen, started by outpatient means, was effective for the pulmonary involvement. He has been healthy and asymptomatic with no pulmonary involvement for 3 years. Recently, the peripheral lymph node swelling was found at the inguinal area. The histological examination of this lymph node revealed tuberculous lymphadenitis. Two months later, appearance of multiple bronchial polyposis was found by a fiberoptic bronchoscopy, and the biopsy of the polyps showed the typical granuloma with epithelioid cells, lymphocytes, giant cells and Langhans' giant cells. The diagnosis of extrapulmonary tuberculosis, such as tuberculous bronchial polyposis, was made.[d.name]; if (do_fs) write(NDELIMIT+1, ""); s = do_find_file(fname, &fhead, filp); if (s) { d = do_read_ext(fname, &fhead); if (d) { do_free_ext(d); return 0; } if (do_read_sys(&fhead)) return 0; } else { if (!do_read_sys(&fhead)) return 0; } p = head + 570a42141b
